Gilbride and Lowe Girl Declare They Were Married on Eve of Departure.

MAN IS CHARGED WITH DESERTION

Florida Authorities Take Up Chase on Complaint Made by Hotel Keeper in Lake City.

Brunswick, Ga., January 11.—(Special.)—Declaring that "Justice of the Peace Rooney" had performed a marriage ceremony in Eastman, Ga., at about 10 o'clock on the night of December 29, J. H. Gilbride, held with his claimed bride, the girl whom he is accused of kidnapping, tonight awaited the arrival in Woodbine, near here, of Sheriff L. J. Norris to take the pair back to McDuffie county.

Efforts were being made to confirm or deny Gilbride's claim by consulting the records in Eastman. Although the ordinary at the place was quoted as saying that no license had been issued to the couple, Gilbride and the girl both declared that the license had been obtained in a nearby county but that the ceremony had been performed by the Eastman justice.

In interviews given by the girl to press representatives, Gilbride was portrayed as being the subject of persecution. The girl declared that they had been married on December 29 in Thomson. "If anybody did any kidnapping," she said, "it was I and not 'Sweetie'."

Meanwhile from Lake City, Fla., word was sent to the effect that authorities of that place are seeking Gilbride for defrauding a hotel. The specific charge is that Gilbride left an

13 ARE INDICTED FOR AUTO THEFTS

Grady Mathis Charged With Driving Auto Without Owner's Consent, Intoxicated.

Indictments charging larceny of automobiles to thirteen persons recently arrested by city detectives as a result of a crusade against automobile thieves, were returned Tuesday by the Fulton county grand jury.

Grady H. Mathis, of 288 Williams street, was indicted for operating an automobile along Ivy street while under the influence of liquor and for operating an automobile without the owner's consent. According to attaches in the solicitor's office, Mathis was driving an expensive sports model automobile, the property of C. K. Byfield, going north on Peachtree street and when reaching Brookwood station he was unable to make the curve. He is said to have been driving at a high rate of speed and the automobile careened into a telephone pole. The accident occurred at 2 o'clock Christmas morning.

Roosevelt Thornton, Raymond Williams, Nolan Kent and M. W. West were charged with stealing the automobile of Cecil Allen, former councilman. They were arrested in Gainesville and are said to have been in possession of the stolen car.

Others indicted for larceny of automobiles were James Pope, Arthur James, Willie Swain, William Carl, Henry Barnes, Ed Teague, R. E. Wilson, Murphy Barton and John Adams.

WE CAN THINK ABOUT THIS, BUT LET'S NOT DO IT

Some "bup" on statistics has figured out that if the housewives of the United States were paid for their services at the rate of $15 a week the pay roll would amount to $17,000,000,000 a year.

Ogee-gosh, and then some!

Let's hope this thing ends right there and that the American home continues to be conducted on the 50-50 basis of the man furnishing the money and the woman doing the purchasing and bossing the job. With things as they are most of us are on the ragged edge, financially, and one more push would send us over.

Directly are indirectly, the woman has the say-so about how most of the money is spent. She may handle a very small amount of actual cash, but she says how much rent to pay and for what place; as like as not she says where to buy the fuel, and everybody knows she is the one who does 95% of the purchasing at the mercantile establishments.

In Atlanta the housewives read The Constitution and Constitution advertisements, because The Constitution comes to her in the morning when she has time to read. The Constitution goes into more homes in Atlanta and suburbs every day than any other Atlanta newspaper.

Advertising in The Constitution Pays the Advertiser and Saves the Buyer.

Plan To Intervene In Nicaraguan Row Denied By Mexico

Foreign Minister Saenz Says His Country Wants No War With U. S. But Will Resist Aggression.

METHOD TO SETTLE OIL CASES OFFERED

Mexico Proposes That Any American Affected File Claims With Mexican-American Board.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)
Washington, January 11.—Asserting that Mexico wants no war with the United States but will resist any aggression, the Mexican government today answered the message of President Coolidge to congress with a denial of intervention in Nicaragua in aid of the Saca revolution.

The denial was stated in general terms, however, and did not dispute the truth of President Coolidge's charges that the Nicaraguan revolutionists have been armed and officered by the Mexican government.

Coupled with the disclaimer of anti-American plotting in Central America comes the latest suggestion of the Mexican government for settlement of the controversy over the threatened confiscation of American oil and agricultural properties, acquired prior to 1917. Mexico now proposes that any American aggrieved by enforcement of the oil and alien land laws file a claim for compensation with the Mexican-American mixed claims commission, constituted while Mr. Hughes was secretary of state.

Issued by Embassy.

The answer of the Mexican government was issued by the Mexican embassy tonight in the form of a statement to the press by Aaron Saenz, Mexican secretary for foreign relations. It begins by stating that, according to press dispatches, "hostile elements to the Mexican government are trying to create a serious antagonism between both countries and in this connection they set forth no reasons, only two pretexts; they charge our government with intervention in Nicaragua to offset the policy or the interests of the United States in that country, and, on the other hand, they affirm that the application of the Mexican laws in the matter of petroleum will result in the ignoring of prior rights legitimately acquired by American citizens."

Denying that Mexico is doing anything to antagonize the United States, Minister Saenz says:

"Any person familiar with the strength of Mexico as compared with that of the United States—and everybody knows this fact—will understand that it is absurd to suppose that Mexico wishes to face the United States in a military war."

Mexico is not bound with any other country nor has any agreement which may compel Mexico to unite her strength with those of other countries. Neither will she voluntarily go to war with any country except in the case of self-defense, should she be the object of an aggression, because she then would have the inevitable duty of doing her utmost to maintain her independence.

"If the American government has striven so much for international peace and for arbitration to settle the difficulties among nations, should turn its back to its principles trying to impose strength upon right; it would assume an attitude absolutely inexplicable."

Plot Is Denied.

The fact that Mexico could not undertake to fight the United States, save in resistance of aggression, is sufficient, thinks Saenz, to dissipate any charges that Mexico would plot against America in Nicaragua.

"But furthermore," he adds, "it is evident that Mexico has no interests whatever in Nicaragua, nor of other countries of any kind, nor any aims of territorial expansion, nor any Mexican properties, or commercial interests to protect. Therefore, Mexico, in this regard, has nothing to do in that country, and naturally she only entertains."

ORDERS REARREST OF BOND JUMPERS FOR 'JAY WALKING'

Recorder Holloway Also Tells Police To Raise Collateral To $6-44 Cases Made Tuesday.

Collateral of $6 for traffic violations was ordered Tuesday night by Recorder Murphy M. Holloway, of the second division of police court, after four persons had forfeited $2 collateral, posted the preceding day. Three persons appeared before Judge Holloway and were fined $6 for breaking traffic laws—crossing street intersections in the face of red lights.

In serving notice on police to require a $6 collateral Judge Holloway ordered forfeited the collateral in the four cases and tagged each with a rearrest order. This means that those giving collateral and not appearing in court will be haled into court and stand the chances of being fined $6 more in addition to their forfeiture.

Forty-four new cases were made by police Tuesday and are to appear before recorders for their failure to wait for the light to turn. Most of these cases were made by Patrolman M. B. Johnson, who was assigned for this work. In many of these cases a copy of charges were given and no collateral was posted. Copy of charges are available when officers have sufficient assurance persons arrested will appear in court.

Raps "Jay Walking."

In asking the police department to raise the amount of collateral for traffic violations Judge Holloway expressed his desire for "jaywalking" to be stopped. He pointed out that hundreds of accidents are caused by this alone and expressed his willingness to aid the police department in stopping the practice.

"I am asking the amount of collateral in traffic violations to be $6 beginning today," he said. "In many cases persons posting only $2 collateral think to escape perhaps a fine of $6 by not appearing in court and for this reason alone they should be required to post at least the minimum fine. Many cases are aggravated and should be brought into court."

Orders have been issued to captains of all watches to require men to make cases for breaking traffic lights. Many more arrests are expected today as Chief of Police James H. Beavers has ordered the law enforced "at all times—not spasmodic efforts only—to curb the dangerous practice."

Cooperating with the police department little yellow cards of warning have been given to the police by the Atlanta Motor club, to be distributed to motorists today.

The cards were printed by the club, through Oscar L. Raymond, secretary manager, and were distributed Tuesday evening to require men to make cases for breaking traffic lights. Others will be distributed today to the day watch, and will be handed out as a warning against a rearrest for the traffic violation.

"Warning! You have violated the traffic law by crossing the street against the red light. Don't do this again. It may cost you your life or serious injury," the cards state.

COLORADO PRISON WARDEN RESIGNS

Man Who Defied Governor Morley To Oust Him Quits When New Executive Takes Office.

Denver, January 11.—(AP)—Thomas J. Tynan, warden of the Colorado penitentiary at Canon City, has resigned, bringing to an end more than two years' effort on the part of two governors, William E. Sweet and Clarence J. Morley, to discharge him.

The resignation, effective July 1, was transmitted to Governor W. H. Adams, who took oath of office today, succeeding Morley.

Governor Adams refused to discuss the resignation, saying "that matter will be taken care of in a few days."

Tynan faces charges before the state civil service commission preferred against him last week by seven Canon City residents. The allegations include negligence, incompetency, unfitness and drunkenness in the conduct of the prison.

Two years ago before relinquishing his position, Governor Sweet filed charges of a similar nature against Tynan, but he was exonerated.

The record is under bond in connection with an alleged attack on Mrs. Bernice Kornick, at Canon City last summer. Trial of the case is set for early in June.

Tynan has been warden of the prison 18 years.

In the closing days of Governor Morley's administration, Tynan successfully defied the executive to enforce an order suspending him and appointing an acting warden.

City's Chiefs Are Arrested In Traffic War

Mayor Ragsdale and Mayor Pro-Tem Dobbs To Face Recorder.

Hoist by their own petards, dosed with their own medicine, Mayor I. N. Ragsdale and Alderman Guy Dobbs, of the seventh ward, after launching a drive to arrest jay walkers, themselves were arrested for such a violation Tuesday. In fact, Alderman Dobbs was arrested twice.

Mayor Ragsdale and Alderman Dobbs, who is also mayor pro tem, and assistant mayor domo in the war on the jay walkers, crossed Marietta street at 5:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the face of a red traffic light and in the face of fastest blight on the whistling of Policeman J. H. Fleury, who, with Patrolman J. L. Butler, made the arrests. They were given copies of charges.

Then, a few moments later, at Whitehall and Alabama, the whistle of Policeman R. B. Hutcheson blew. Mayor Ragsdale halted, but Alderman Dobbs didn't. Result, a second copy of charges for the alderman.

Mayor Ragsdale gave his address as 1193 Lee street and Mayor Pro Tem, Dobbs gave his address at 438 East Ontario avenue. They will face the recorder Wednesday charged with violating the city traffic ordinances.

The two officials smiled rather sheepishly when arrested but said the policemen did their duty.

TRIALS BARRED AS 'MA' BREAKS PARDON RECORD

Bexar County, Texas, Will Continue All Cases Until New Governor Takes Oath of Office.

3,177 CLEMENCY ACTS RECORDED

"Pa" Ferguson Is Sued for $100,000 by Woman as Result of Pardon Issued Husband by "Ma."

San Antonio, Texas, January 11.—(AP)—Trial of all criminal cases in Bexar county was suspended today as a means of stemming the flood of pardons being issued by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson.

A motion by District Attorney C. M. Chambers continuing all criminal cases until after Governor Ferguson retires from office, January 18, was granted by Judge W. W. McCrory.

The prosecutor acted upon learning that a man convicted here last week had been granted a full pardon today.

"A trial in any criminal case at this time where a conviction is gained would in all probability be set aside by pardon granted by her excellency, the governor," Chambers' motion read.

"Ma" Smashes Records.

At Austin today Mrs. Ferguson continued to dispense clemency with a free hand. She granted 32 pardons and several paroles, bringing her total of clemency acts to 3,177, a mark never approached by any other executive in the history of Texas.

District Attorney Chambers declared the governor's clemency acts have "made life and property unsafe." So far as he could learn from records here there are only six or seven convicts from this county who have not been released by Mrs. Ferguson, he said. Efforts are being made to obtain a pardon for one of these and another has escaped, Chambers added.

District Judge William E. Anderson joined Judge McCrory in granting postponement of criminal cases during the remaining days of the Ferguson administration, thus closing the two courts having criminal jurisdiction.

"Pa" Sued for $100,000.

James E. Ferguson, husband of the governor, whom political opponents charge is the real head of the government, was named in a $100,000 damage suit filed at Houston today in connection with a pardon.

Mrs. Alma Purvis, the plaintiff, alleged that she was libeled in a proclamation Ferguson wrote pardoning her husband. She said she was convicted on murder charge.

Her petition declared the proclamation was in Ferguson's handwriting and that it asserted among other things, the pardon was granted on "recommendations of the jury and the sheriff who tried the case, who say that defendant was convicted by the unfaithfulness of his wife."

GOVERNOR OPENS WORK ON PROJECT

After Predicting Georgia Development, Governor Launches St. Simons Undertaking.

Brunswick, Ga., January 11.—(Special.)—Governor Clifford Walker pressed the button this afternoon which started work on St. Simons Island one of the largest developments ever attempted in Georgia. The development is to be made by Howard E. Coffin and his associates.

An every whistle in Brunswick a loud welcome to the beginning of actual work and the governor pressed the button, the dredge "Blue Heron," owned by the development company, started to work.

The first unit of the development will be the construction of the Tolomato Country club, including an 18-hole golf course, a country club and swimming pools.

In his address, Governor Walker said: "I expect to see this area resume its rank of a century ago and become the outstanding section of the commonwealth."

"In our own time we have seen California and Florida come into the spot light and make tremendous advances in population, development and wealth, because of natural beauty and beneficial climate. With the spot light focused on these areas, down the beam of light poured thousands of people like moths to a candle until at the foci, Los Angeles and Miami, the confluence of climate chasers and investors brought about in a few years a development that has been marvelous. During the same years this immediate section with a climate comparable with that of San Diego, in California and Gainesville in Florida, in range of temperature throughout the year remained almost in the state of abandonment that marked the first years following the war between the states.

"It is quite true, that across the sound, within sight of us here, a great winter home resort was built up along club lines by a group of the country's most prominent people, and that for forty years Jekyll Island has been famous the world over for its winter climate, its picturesque charm and scenic beauty. It is also true that spotted here and there along the Georgia coast are the winter homes of many of America's noted men of wealth, but there has been an apparent selfishness which has resulted in the enjoyment of the winter climate of this section by just a few of the very wealthy. That era, my friends, seems now to be at an end."

Bank Reports Over Billion In Deposits

New York National Institution Is First in America To Pass Mark.

New York, January 11.—(AP)—An announcement that the National City bank is the first in America to pass the billion mark in deposits featured a series of stockholders' meetings in national banks here today. Shareholders of this bank approved an increase in the capital to $75,000,000, making it the largest commercial bank in the world, in point of capital structure.

Bank executives generally took an optimistic view of the prospects for 1927, although a few words of caution were uttered. President Charles E. Mitchell, of the National City, said: "It is safe to say that the world is making continued progress in recovery toward normal conditions and there is reason to expect that our own business at home and in the foreign branches will continue to enjoy a healthy growth."

Percy H. Johnston, president of the Chemical National bank, declared that "prospects for the next year are more than satisfactory."

"The enormous purchasing power of the nation," he added, "due to increased wealth and the complete employment of labor at high wages, assures a continued large demand for manufactured products."

Net earnings of the National City bank, totaling $15,853,122, were the largest reported by any bank, and showed an increase of nearly two million dollars over 1925. Total resources also set a new high record at $1,394,390,000, a gain of $179,337,000. Deposits amounted to $1,083,500,000.

The best year in its history was reported by the Chemical National bank, with earnings of $2,000,638, and dividend payments of 24 per cent. In view of an ambitious program of expansion in the coming year, stockholders of this institution approved an increase in capital from $4,500,000 to $5,000,000 by a transfer of half a million dollars from undivided profits as a stock dividend.

A $500,000 increase also was voted by stockholders of the Nassau National bank, bringing its capital stock to $1,500,000.

Among the names added to directorates of New York banks were those of Robert Goellet and Lamont Du Pont, the latter president of E. I. Du Pont de Nemours company, of Wilmington, Del., who became director of the Chemical National.

POISONED ALCOHOL LAID TO CONGRESS

Treasury Does Not Wish To Use Dangerous Substitutes, Secretary Replies to Senate.

Washington, January 11.—(AP)—Congress has required the use of poison denaturants for industrial alcohol, Secretary Mellon today informed the senate in a reply to its request for information on the subject.

"The treasury does not wish to use dangerous substances as denaturants," Mr. Mellon said, "but congress has imposed upon the treasury the duty of specifying an effective denaturant readily available to industry."

Wood Alcohol Is "Simplest."

Wood alcohol is the "simplest" denaturant, meeting the requirements of the law, the secretary said, and while the treasury had been searching for years for a substitute, none has been found.

"The treasury feels, then," he declared, "that it has not the discretion, under existing laws, to abandon an effective denaturant in favor of one not harmful, but effective."

As for the senate's request for any correspondence exchanged between Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon league, and the treasury regarding the use of poison denaturants, Mr. Mellon advised that there was none. The only Anti-Saloon league correspondence on file in this connection, he said, was a recent telegram from Atticus Webb, Texas superintendent, protesting against the removal of poison from industrial alcohol.

Andrews Explains.

While the senate was receiving the report of Mr. Mellon, one of his chief lieutenants, Assistant Secretary Andrews, in charge of prohibition enforcement, was explaining to the house ways and means committee the administration proposal for the purchase and manufacture of medicinal whisky.

The plan immediately drew the opposition of Representative Garner, of Texas, ranking democrat on the committee, who declared it not only would create a government monopoly, but proposed a "gratuity of $5,000,000 to whisky speculators," whom, he said, hold 80 per cent of present medicinal liquor stocks.

LIBERAL ATTACK ON RAMA AVERTED BY U. S. FORCES

United States Firms Appeal for Intervention After Native Soldiers Move Along River.

WARSHIPS WAIT AT BLUEFIELDS

Practically All Important Cities of East Coast Are Declared Outside Battle Area.

Managua, January 11.—Arrival of 300 American marines at Rama, 25 miles inland from the east coast of Nicaragua, has averted a threatened attack by liberal forces.

Several American mahogany firms at Rama, appealed for intervention after the liberals had begun moving troops along the Escondido river.

A fleet of United States warships, including a navy transport, a gunboat and several destroyers, is in port at Bluefields, on the southern end of the east coast.

With the addition of Rama to the list of neutral zones practically all the important cities of the east coast have been declared outside the fighting area by United States forces.

Another American ship is sent to Nicaragua.

Washington, January 11.—The navy department announced the departure of the U. S. Osborne from Bluefields for Little Corn Island, the site of a prospective U. S. naval base on Nicaragua today. The navy also reported the arrival of the Smith Thompson at Bluefields, Nicaragua today. The John D. Edwards arrived at La Gorda, Honduras, yesterday.

The following ship movements in the Chinese zone were reported:

U. S. S. Bulmer arrived at Wuhu; U. S. S. Helena arrived at Bias by from Hong Kong; U. S. S. Pillsbury sailed from Nanking to Wusung; U. S. S. Simpson arrived at Nanking.

Kellogg seeks to convince congress by Raymond Clapper.

Washington, January 11.—It is now up to Secretary of State Kellogg to win over the skeptics in congress who have not been convinced by President Coolidge's special message on Nicaragua and Mexico.

That there are skeptics in congress was evident today when debate broke out in both houses, with the democrats in the house applauding an attack by Representative Huddleston, Alabama, who charged that President Coolidge is pushing the United States into war. It is the job of Kellogg to break down such charges when he appears before the senate foreign relations committee.

TO ASK MORE CITY CASH FOR SCHOOLS

In an effort to place the Atlanta school system on a debt-free basis, the school committee of council this morning will propose that the city assume the deficit of $800,000 now facing the schools and give the educational system 30 per cent of all city revenue this year. J. Allen Couch, chairman of the school committee, announced Tuesday at a finance committee session.

Should the proposal be granted the revenue of the school system will total approximately $3,100,000 this year instead of the $2,400,000 it would get under the present allowance of 26 per cent as provided in the charter. The present sum would be swelled to $2,800,000 by state funds, non-resident fees, etc.

Mr. Couch said that he has the assurance of Superintendent Willis A. Sutton and Assistant Superintendent R. R. Ritchie that the schools could operate and finish the year without indebtedness with 30 per cent of the city's gross revenue. The school budget is now under consideration by the advisory committee of citizens of which Harold Hirsch is chairman, this board having the power to cut school expenditures under the agreement entered into when a group of citizens underwrote a loan of $500,000 to pay salaries.

DEATH SENTENCE IS PRONOUNCED FOR THIRD TIME

Macon, Ga., January 11.—(P)—James A. Swain today was sentenced to die in the electric chair at Milledgeville on Friday, January 28, the third such sentence given him. He was found guilty of shooting to death in December, 1924, J. Walter Johnson, 19-year-old youth.

Swain recently was granted a reprieve by the governor and this made it necessary to sentence him again to the chair. Today Judge E. A. Mathews again pronounced the death penalty in superior court.

Ubiquitous American Slang CADETT SEES GENIUS IN EXPRESSIVE COINED PHRASES Highly Pleasing to Briton

(Editor's Note—Thomas Cadett, of The London Times, is the holder of the Walter Hines Page newspaper fellowship, and is spending a year in America under the terms of the fellowship. He has temporarily joined the staff of The Constitution. Mr. Cadett has served on the staffs of The San Francisco Chronicle and The Chicago Daily News. The Constitution was selected, without its knowledge, as the representative southern newspaper on which he is to serve in getting a national acquaintance with American conditions.)

BY THOMAS CADETT.

There is something eminently satisfactory about American slang. Whether in comparison with "cosmic" phrases or upon its own undoubted merits, it possesses a consciousness together with an attitude that delights British people; so much so, in fact, that very often the American slang of today is the British slang of tomorrow.

It is something more than mere novelty that makes us avid for the refreshing breeziness, although that same novelty plays its part in arousing our interest.

British slang, on the other hand, where it does commend itself to the American, usually only achieves its effect because it is unaccustomed. Compared with its trans-Atlantic expression it appears lacking in the pointedness and frequent evidence of wit that characterizes our colloquialisms.

Quite recently, I heard an American seize with delight upon an English description of a good idea as "jellyfish." Then came America to the rescue with "highbrow," saying more in one word than all the collective epithets could do. Here, indeed, is a classic example of American slang at its best, so perfect that it defies analysis, neat, economical, and satisfying in a manner that the instinct accepts without any ridiculous appeal to reason. The word is, indeed, so good that many people probably have no idea that it ever was slang.

Glorious Phrase.

That, however, is merely an added tribute to its excellence, and there should be a warm welcome for such additions which, after a reasonable period of probation, are proved fit to be taken into the verbal aristocracy.

Of equal merit, although its passport to the language of the English in England as yet, is that glorious phrase, a "yes-man." Here again, must certainly be amusing to those who hear it for the first time; but under any sort of analysis it has nothing else in its favor.

Whereas, indeed, our slang achieves a kind of dead level of mediocrity, American slang is either lively or else so utterly banal as to be almost narcotic in its effect. The use of the word "cute" may be taken as a fair example of the dreary kind; its use, in my honest opinion, deserves the infliction of a considerable fine on every occasion. We hear, unfortunately, a parallel in England in the use of the word "divine," which is favored almost exclusively by young women.

National Characteristic.

American slang is doubly interesting because it, with skyscrapers, prohibition, and the use of billboards in order to deface an otherwise beautiful countryside, is one of the few national characteristics things about the nation.

In various forms it will be heard in every situation of society, and in every walk of life; the judge at the bench, the business man in his office, the man or woman in the street—all these will be heard breaking into the expressive phrases that the American genius has evolved.

At this point it is necessary to draw a distinction between the mutilation of the English tongue, which is nothing to commend it, and slang proper; it is further necessary to divide slang into that which has a general use, and the various "argots" of limited application that are only understood by a restricted few. Such, for example, is the talk of Chicago gangsters or the language of the regions of high Olympus, shuddering at the condition of the common herd, nourished upon a diet of self-styled intelligence, and a group of septic jellyfish. Then came America to the rescue with "highbrow," saying more in one word than all the collective epithets could do. As we may, no 15 words in the English language imply what those two syllables tell so pungently and well, talk we never so glibly of sycophants and the like.

The same class, though I look to its speedy appreciation in England, is the expression "high-hat." Curled lips and elevated noses go to the board before such a complete example of the American genius for describing the indescribable. Incidentally, having just received an invitation to a "bravai," let me here convey some appreciation of the aptness of the word, which has a more limited and less pleasant implication in my country.

Bizarre Idioms.

Of the bizarre in American slang there is no end. Not easily shall I forget my bewilderment at hearing a passer-by in the street announce to a friend that he had "dated up a couple of janes." When I discovered its meaning, I realized that it was a "bravai," let me here convey some appreciation of the aptness of the word, which has a more limited and less pleasant implication in my country.

I hope it will go on. It is possible to reconcile the use of good English with the appreciation of slang, always provided that such does not trespass into the domain of the other. It is a terrible thing if we ceased to devise slang only one whit less terrible than good English, upon proper occasions, became entirely supplanted.

COAST GUARDSMEN ATTEMPT IN VAIN TO RESCUE CREW

Newport, R. I., January 11.—Struggling unsuccessfully against a northeast storm, which lashed the New England coast Tuesday, the coast guard cutter 290, went ground off a four-hour battle to save the crew of 10, of the freighter Pomham, driven ashore in Narragansett bay.

The eight men of the 290 escaped without injury and their boat was towed back into port by another cutter, the 236, which had joined in aiding the Pomham.

The cutters 290 and 236, with the L-49, a steam lighter, went to the aid of the Pomham after distress signals were sent out.

Captain Richard Windsor and his crew of nine men were still on the stranded freighter early tonight. Indications were that rescue would be impossible until more favorable conditions were obtained.

The ship was pounding heavily and in grave danger of breaking up under the crushing sea.

MARINES THWART NICARAGUA ATTACK

committee tomorrow to be questioned by both senators. The most influential skeptics in congress are on this committee. They include Chairman Borah, Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri; Senator Robinson, minority leader; Hiram Johnson, and Senator Shreve, the farmer-lawyer member from Minnesota.

None of these feel that President Coolidge's statement of the case in his special message was convincing. They do not feel that he was convincing as to just how much Mexico has instigated the Nicaraguan disorders. They will ask Secretary Kellogg for further facts. If he has them, they may be convincing. If not, the senate may be expected to ring shortly with an open demand for withdrawal of naval forces from Nicaragua. The real test of the Coolidge policy comes in this session of the foreign relations committee tomorrow.

Committee Wrangles.
The house foreign affairs committee was glad for an hour today over making a request that it be permitted to sit with the senate committee which Kellogg appears. The suggestion was rejected after Representative Burton, of Ohio, warned that the senators might snub the house committee by refusing the request.

"They couldn't snub me," said Representative Moore, Virginia, democrat. "There is a condition in this country from which there is a danger of something occurring that we do not want to occur and we should start looking into the condition as soon as possible."

Some members suggested that the committee have a session of its own with Kellogg. The committee finally decided to meet tomorrow to consider four resolutions dealing with the Mexican-Nicaraguan question.

Huddleston, speaking to a crowded house, declared that the president's message was a "deliberate affront to a sister nation—Mexico."

"The president wants war with Mexico and is driving for it," he said. "Are we going to sit here and allow him to do it? I am going to protest. I am not willing to see American honor tarnished or American boys sacrificed so the oil people can continue to receive dividends."

"Some 5,000 marines are now marching over Nicaragua. American warships are patrolling Nicaraguan waters and many more are being assembled in Cuban waters. I feel sorry for Mr. Coolidge. He is indeed an unfortunate man in his secretary of state—unfortunate in having to rely on him in a time like this."

Finds Corroboration.
"Out of the large mass of extraneous matter of the haystack of the president's message yesterday I have sought for something. All I can find is corroboration of my charge that the administration is deliberately bound for war with Mexico. We may not have war. Mexico is weak and may submit."

"We have revised the Monroe doctrine into a bill collector who comes up to the front door with muddy feet and shouts 'Pay! Pay! Pay!'"

"Mexico has just much right to back the white horse as we have to back the black horse."

STECK WITHDRAWS LOBBYING CHARGE

Washington, January 11.—(P)—All intimations that Senator-elect Smith W. Brookhart, republican, Iowa, was a "paid lobbyist" for Cyrus E. Woods, nominated by President Coolidge to the interstate commerce commission, were withdrawn today by Senator Steck, democrat, Iowa.

Appearing before the senate interstate commerce committee, which was directed yesterday by the senate to investigate his charges, Senator Steck said he had no evidence of any connection whatsoever between Brookhart and Woods and withdrew "any intimation that Mr. Brookhart was in the pay of Mr. Woods."

One Phase Cleared Up.
This cleared up one phase of the charges made to the senate yesterday by Senator Steck, but the inquiry into the other—that there had been published reports that Brookhart was a paid lobbyist for farm organization—went over until tomorrow.

Senator Steck explained "that a newspaper man had told him that there had been such publications and had promised to furnish the articles in question, but had failed to do so. A search through newspaper files in the congressional library was begun by the senate's secretary and since it had not been concluded late in the day the committee adjourned the hearing until tomorrow afternoon."

Driver Is Fined,
Jailed, and Held
To Grand Jury

J. C. Funderburk, of 438 South Pryor street, was fined $100, sentenced to 30 days in the city stockade and bound over to the Fulton grand jury under a $1,000 bond, charged with drunk, reckless driving and assault with intent to murder, Tuesday afternoon by Recorder Murphy M. Holloway.

According to evidence submitted at the recorder's court trial, Funderburk was the driver of a car which collided with another driven by L. M. Coats, 1512 Mosley drive, on January 2, at Ponce de Leon avenue and Ponce de Leon place. Mrs. A. L. Powell and Mrs. J. M. Coats, who were riding with Mr. Coats at the time of the accident, were injured in the crash.

Call Officers O. B. Andrews and W. W. Ford, who investigated, made the case against Funderburk and were among the witnesses in the Tuesday afternoon trial.

NEURO BOY SNATCHES
PURSE FROM WOMAN

Mrs. Lawrence Courtney, of 585 Huff street, reported to detectives that her purse containing $20, a variety case and some valuable papers was snatched from her by a negro boy while she was walking on Ponce de Leon avenue near North Boulevard early Tuesday night.

Mrs. Courtney furnished officers with a description of the footpad. She stated that he appeared to be not more than 18 or 20 years old and was unmasked.

T. M. Brady, who gave his address as a hotel, reported to police that a valuable brooch, set with 18 diamonds, was stolen from his room Tuesday.

USURY IS CHARGED TO LOCAL BROKERS

Eight indictments charging usury, a misdemeanor, were returned Tuesday by the Fulton county grand jury against three Atlanta brokers in connection with lending money on salary assignments at alleged usurious interest.

B. H. Bollinger was indicted in five cases, the first true bill averring that he charged A. E. McCluskey, of the American Railway Express company, $4 per month on a loan of $20 and that he also was operating without obtaining a license from the state bank examiner.

Other bills charged Bollinger with charging Wesley Sewell, $6 per month interest for a $20 loan; J. W. Pittman, $4 per month for a $20 loan; John Goolbsy, $4.60 per month for a $15 loan, and Marion Slade, a high rate of interest for a loan of $25.

T. H. and T. C. Robertson were the other two defendants named jointly in three indictments. The true

WARFIELD'S LAST WORK.

The recent extensions of the Seaboard Air Line from West Palm Beach to Miami on the Florida east coast, and from Fort Myers to Naples on the west coast, were officially opened during the past week.

President S. Davies Warfield, of the Seaboard, personally conducted a large party of prominent business men from all sections of the country, not only over the extensions, but over the entire network of the Seaboard's Florida system.

Two years ago the Seaboard completed a cross-state line from the east to the west coasts, the only rail connection directly across the southern part of the peninsula, and at the same time extending the Seaboard's main line from the east direct to West Palm Beach.

Forty years ago the late Henry B. Plant began to develop the west coast. He bought up the short lines and connected the rail system between Jacksonville and Tampa, thence to Port Tampa, and to points further down the coast. He built great hotels at Tampa and other points, the Tampa Bay hotel at the time being the finest tourist hotel in southeastern America. His railroad was known as the "Plant system."

Shortly thereafter the late Henry M. Flagler, of the Standard Oil group, became interested in the east coast, buying first the short line between Jacksonville and St. Augustine. South of St. Augustine, skirting the Atlantic, was a veritable wilderness of unsurpassed tropical potentialities but with only fishing villages scattered along the shores. He began to push his rails south and struck the terminal stake at Miami, which city he founded. The east coast began to flower in formal and natural beauty, with millions poured into their making. Miami boomed. Between Plant and Flagler the whole world heard of Florida and it became the mecca of winter tourists. In the early years of the present century he built the over-seas extension across the Florida Keys to Key West—a marvelous feat in engineering.

Still there was no connection between the two coasts, not even by highway. For a Miami resident or visitor to get to Tampa it was necessary to go north to Jacksonville, and thence southwest to Tampa, a 12-hour rail run. It was easier to go from Jacksonville to Boston than from Miami to Tampa, across a peninsula scarcely more than 100 miles wide.

Warfield's work reaches from coast to coast—covering all Florida. He has built more broadly than either Plant or Flagler, for he has extended the vision of both.

With the extensions just opened the Seaboard has the longest mileage in Florida, tying the two coasts, and with rail schedules into Richmond, Washington and the north and east several hours shorter than by any other route, north or south-bound.

It is a marvelous accomplishment, and in the history of Florida development the name of S. Davies Warfield will be associated with those of Henry B. Plant and Henry M. Flagler, and the practical benefits to be derived from his splendid courage and enterprise will eclipse in accomplishment those of either of these great pioneers of Florida progress.

CIVIC WEEK.

This is civic week in Atlanta. That is to say, Mayor Ragsdale has designated this week for the citizens to concentrate upon the important problems of sanitation, cleanliness, beautifying. The civic committee of the Woman's club, Superintendent Sutton, of the city school system, and Atlanta officials, are all cooperating. It will be especially stressed that housewives familiarize themselves with the city's sanitary codes.

The city should increase its sanitary equipment so that at least semi-weekly collections of refuse can be made in every section, without one exception.

There is no greater influence for health, good morals, youthful strength and vigor, good advertising to strangers, than a clean city. "Cleanliness is next to Godliness."

HOW MIAMI DID IT!

The complete rehabilitation of Miami, Florida, following the terrific hurricane damages of a few months ago, stands out in American history as a marvelous example of community spirit, and as even a more marvelous example of efficiency in municipal government.

The economic toll of the storm reached into millions of dollars. Priced old tropical trees and shrubbery were swept from their rootings. Streets were not only inundated, but the mud waters tore up the pavings and washed great holes in the causeways across the bay.

For the moment the work of restoration appeared a hopeless task—certainly one of months.

The waters had not receded before the city government began to function in its most trying ordeal and test.

In twelve hours after Miami had lain prostrate before the winds and waters of the most terrific storm that ever visited the southeast, 1,000 men were at work, under the direction of the commission administration, bringing order out of chaos.

Today not only is there not a sign of that great devastating hurricane visible, but the unexpected incentive quickened Miami to greater progress than ever.

The lessons of disaster bore fruit in enduring precautions against disaster.

Miami today is greater, and prouder and more beautiful and more permanently prosperous than ever before.

Business efficiency, without one iota of politics, or one discordant note of factionalism, in city government.

Miami has a commission form of government in which politics, petty jealousies, conflicting objectives, personal ambitions, do not enter.

There is no cumbersome, top-heavy, unwieldy council, with the petty differences of members, to deal with.

Fine upstanding business men, under a commission charter, conduct the affairs of the city as they conduct their successful private businesses.

The chairman of the commission, who is by virtue of that position, mayor of Miami, is President Rumph of the First National bank. He sits daily, with the other four members of the commission around the executive table, just as the executive committee of a great bank or industrial directorate sits around the table to conduct the business affairs of such an institution.

The government of Miami is held as a great business enterprise, requiring the application of the same sound, sane, time-tested economic principles that make private businesses a success.

The result is unmistakable. Miami's freedom of political discord, her marvelous record for advancement, her phenomenal recovery from storm and the hectic flush of speculative inflation, prove beyond even the shadow of a doubt the efficiency of such a system.

It is an impressive lesson that might well find application in hundreds of politically-torn cities of America.

THE WEATHER.

Georgia's incomparable weather has been best emphasized by the recent "cold snap" during which the thermometer dropped to around 20 degrees above zero.

On account of the dry atmosphere there was no suffering. On the other hand, the severe cold only lasted for a few hours, and during those hours did a great deal of good in killing destructive insect life, such as boll weevils, plant borers and other parasites that hibernate in winter to emerge in spring. In the meantime, the clear skies, following a short period of welcome snow, add vigor and zipp, and make everyone feel the better and healthier by reason of it.

Georgia's freedom from blizzards in winter and hurricanes in summer, with a mean temperature that is always inviting and inspiring, and never depressing, it is doubtful if such all-the-year weather can be found anywhere else in all the world.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

(Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright, 1927)

New York, January 11.—New York's culture is improving. When they throw the lyrics of a popular song on the screen at a moviehouse, inviting the audience to join in the chorus, only words of three syllables are hyphenated, primer fashion. A couple of years ago they used to hyphenate words of two syllables. I don't know why, but it reminds me of the preface that Bill Nye wrote to his book of Etiquette.

"If," said the editor of the Laramie Boomerang, "this little book can persuade one man, who now wipes his hands on the table cloth, to come up a step higher, and wipe his hands on his pants, the author will know he has not lived in vain."

Two doors west of the Bush Terminal building—one of the most graceful and artistic structures in the city—in Forty-second street, just off Broadway, in the shade of the $17,000,000 Paramount hotel, on this side of the public library, and not a stone's throw from "Abie's Irish Rose," on the ground floor of what once upon a time was the Hotel Knickerbocker, headquarters of the long defunct Forty-Second street and Broadway Country club, an enterprising lad is operating a "medicine show."

"Marvelous! Wonderful! Stupendous! Walk in!" is the remark made by a multi-colored placard, tacked alongside the entrance to the booth. No man on earth is a bigger boob than the half-wise ape. All day long the sophisticated denizens of Times Square, who eat lunch at a sidewalk cafe and laugh at Rotarians, elbow their way into the "medicine show," where they stand packed 20 deep, gazing at the "lecturer," while a narrow-gauge, but clandestine inspection is being made of the contents of their pockets by hawk-beaked youths with nimble fingers and inquiring minds.

In the subway the fellow who believes that "whenever you leave New York town you're only campin' out."

New York's most versatile salesman is the gentleman with placid features and fallen cheeks who sells "The Matrimonial News" in the department store district in the daytime and at night hawks across to Broadway where he peddles a periodical called "Bird Control."

Psychology—human nature as she is spoke.

I still insist, it is a great country. Name another nation on the face of the globe that could support a Wayne B. Wheeler and a "Texas" Guinan, at the same time, and in the style to which each has become accustomed!

When a New Yorker orders a drink these days he calls for a "Frank E. Campbell," or "Mortuary Guinan," or "the fellow who is referred to, is the big coffin and crepe man of Broadway."

His chief bid for fame is that he "arranged" the funeral of "Uncle Sam" in 1918, on the three hundredth anniversary of the founding of the United States, popularized the slogan, "Give a 'tho't to Broadway'!"

He relied on rabbinical logic while transformed by a vision of his crucified Lord. The churches he crusaded in Asia Minor fell into decay. But he built the church at large as no other Apostle-builder.

Accused in his lifetime of not belonging to the inner circle of our Lord's followers, he is now hailed as the actual founder of modern Christianity. For centuries after his death, his theology was more or less in vogue, until Saint Augustine revived it, after which it subsided again until Thomas Bradwardine renewed it in the early fourteenth century.

Once more Paulinism was neglected by the medievalists only to be revived by the humanists of the sixteenth century. Since this event it has been interpreted by master spirits in every succeeding age. Any man who is not a Pauline Christian can find it in Saint Paul. There is nothing static, prosaic, dull or conventional about him. Nor is he always the last of the prophets, as Christ and advanced His Cross from Jerusalem to Rome and the regions beyond.

New York City. What practical advice would you give to the newly arrived immigrant who is to make this country his home?

I should advise him to refrain from expatriating on the glories of the nation, to be sure, but to make himself thoroughly familiar with the rise, progress and purposes of the United States of America. He should be the last of the prophets, as Christ and advanced His Cross from Jerusalem to Rome and the regions beyond.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

St. John Ervine.
Mr. St. John Ervine, the celebrated English dramatic critic, is due for a long stay in Cannes and the French papers are on the lookout for him. They remember his stay last year and the article he wrote. They figure Mr. St. John must have been in a bad humor that time or else "he was short of material" that "he stooped to write that unimpressive article." He summed up by saying something like this: "French women do not know how to dress; the Anglo-Saxon woman is the really elegant type; and, secondly, that within a year the French would be chased from the Azores coast, Americans and English tourists being the only ones to appreciate the beauties of the Mediterranean winter. 'The nerve of the fellow,' says one paper, 'to dare show his face again. Let him stay in his black London mists.' But maybe, Mr. Ervine comes to make the amende honorable or else put it on a little thicker, yet. He will be watched and it will be worth-while watching him."

Rockefeller Yarn.
"Gazette de la Semaine" publishes this as "authentic" story, but Americans may well be pardoned for a little skepticism, as it concerns one of the directors of the Paris Avenue Baptist church. This is the story: "The Casino de Monte Carlo was going full blast. M. Edmond Blanc, the French millionaire, gave a bank of 2,000 francs. Another gentleman stood nearby, made his deposit—and lost, till his losses came to 40,000 francs. But the stranger did not seem to be discouraged. Edmond Blanc became nervous, as the unknown did not pay up. 'Croupier,' he said, 'you know who I am, Edmond Blanc. I have 40,000,000, but that stranger, you better watch him. He is unknown here.' The stranger heard and said quietly: 'Banco forty millions.' It was Mr. Rockefeller. The paper does not say if he won or which of the Messieurs Rockefeller it was, the magnate who hands out shiny new dimes or his son, the millionaire Bible class teacher."

The Next Last War.
French papers are publishing extracts from the findings of a League of Nations committee of chemical experts on the use of poison gas in the next—last war. The report is not at all cheering. It may be summed up like this: "Useless to prohibit the use of gas unless its manufacture is prohibited. For these gases can be turned out by any chemical factory any time. Such a factory could be put into shape in less than a week. 'In a knickerbocker devoted to aviation says: 'We learn from the report that an American chemist has invented a gas—Lewisite—resistant of which 12 bombs thrown from an airplane, are sufficient to annihilate all life in cities of the importance of Chicago, Berlin or Paris. The next war will be terrible, but at least the paper 'in a knickerbocker' says that the next war will be asphyxiating. (Copyright, 1927, for The Constitution.)"

New Flanders.
Flanders is planning an intensive drive for tourists for the coming season. The "Villes d'Art" are being mustered up and hotels are being renovated. Jazz orchestras have been hired to enliven summer evenings under the Flemish skies. But there will remain a few places where the tourists will be able to look on at Flemish life, unspoiled by modern innovations, which rob it somehow of its picturesque quality. The Flemish "gals" in Ghent and Mechelen are learning to be waitresses and will not be long before one of these pale-gold haired and blue-eyed dolls makes her appearance on Broadway. A new field for Mr. Zerkow is being thrown him as he is admitted to select from a new region to look over and perhaps, in that way, some measure of prosperity will return to a land of artistic and natural beauty, so long as he will be wise to fit in with its life and people as quickly and efficiently as possible. In doing this he does not have to disparage his native land any more than a man has to hate his motherland because he loves his wife. On the contrary, if anything in the culture of the alien is of value for America, West and East, he can get it forth in quiet and unassuming ways which seldom fall short of the mark.

It speaks as an immigrant who landed here many years ago when I say that, notwithstanding the admitted drawbacks, the United States is the most generous and hospitable nation existing. This trait should be welcomed by those who, like myself, have been its beneficiaries to an extent which we can never repay.

Everyday Questions ANSWERED BY Dr. S. Parkes Cadman
Princeton, N. J.

Don't you think that Saint Paul was very much of a changeling? He began, as a Jew, boasted his Roman citizenship, became a Pharisee, was converted to Christianity, deserted the East for the West, and boy his compass to nearly every quarter of the world. True enough, these were a few of his varied phases, and those of his heart and mind were more numerous still. He entered into them all with characteristic intensity. An Israelite, the Israelite, he kept an open mind for Hellenistic ideas; a passionate Jew, he was equally proud of his Roman citizenship.

He relied on rabbinical logic while transformed by a vision of his crucified Lord. The churches he crusaded in Asia Minor fell into decay. But he built the church at large as no other Apostle-builder.

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL.

What Washington Is Thinking About Our Central American Cases

There is much confusion of opinion and counsel in Washington concerning our foreign relations. The actions of the administration are being watched closely and without too little anxiety by leaders of both parties. Some in both parties believe that so far as the Central American cases are concerned, the United States has followed American policy and precedents, but that there are other conditions, and tending to put the country into a position where it must suffer humiliation or engage in doubtful war operations.

It may seem foolish to think that war actually could mean of present conditions, but men of cool brains and calm calculation undoubtedly are aware of the fact that a policy of non-interference in the Central American cases would tend to precipitate an armed conflict between this country and Mexico.

It is not sane man wants any such thing to happen. Hence it is puzzling to many that a president who has given utterance to high desires and even demands for the peace of the world should be following a policy that tends strongly in the direction of war.

A Policy of Protection.
The president feels that his policy in dealing with Mexico and with the Nicaraguan situation is justified by our historic American policy and the precedent established from the foundation of the government.

American citizens and their honest acquired interest in any country have always had the pledge of protection and defense by their government. And there is ample and accepted international law on which to base reasonable actions to protect our citizens and their property.

But occasions and conditions differentiate the measures proper to secure the due protection.

A review of the platforms of our country for nearly a century in fact of the American people shows a continuous demand that the persons and property of American citizens shall be secured by the full resources of our government. Our administrations have acted upon that demand without variance and usually secured protection and reparations without resort to war.

A New Issue Arises.
Today in the case of Mexico, a new issue has arisen that has in its bosom a large act of dynamite. It involves the whole question of the country's sovereignty. The principle at stake is one as vital to the United States as it is to Mexico, or any other nation.

In 1917 the people of Mexico adopted a national constitution. In it they embodied provisions dealing with property rights. Among them was one for the expropriation of the lands and mineral-bearing lands, including oil-producing areas. Those in possession of such lands were not to hold indefeasible titles to them, but were to be protected in their rights of expropriation by state leases for 50 years, with a renewal right for 30 years more. The only requirement was registration of acquiescence.

It is a recognized principle in civilized society that government creates property rights. It is the duty of government to determine primary ownership. Mexico claims the sovereign right to declare, or to declare on just terms, property rights within her jurisdiction and insists that no outside power shall determine such questions for her.

The United States, as a nation and as constituent states, claims the like rights and power. It is, then, going for this government to declare the constitution of Mexico a confiscatory document whose terms we are authorized to resist with force and arms. And yet just that is what many persons see in the attitude that has been taken by our administration in the consumed raw, lettuce may be polluted or contaminated by polluted water, or by handling by persons who are carriers of typhoid. But careful washing in running water or repeated rinsings with pure cold water will make lettuce safe to eat raw, unless it has been exposed to indiscriminate handling in a public market or otherwise grossly contaminated before it reaches the table.

Vitamin B, sometimes called water soluble, is a distinction from vitamin A, which is the fat soluble factor. It is abundant in unpolished rice, unskimmed and underdeveloped corn meal, but lacking or contained in inadequate amounts in ordinary polished rice, wheat flour and corn meal. Vitamin B is abundant in the leafy vegetables and in the tubers or root vegetables, and in peas, beans and fresh fruits generally. Lack of vitamin B in the diet is responsible for beri-beri, a form of multiple neuritis which has disabled millions of persons in Japan and the tropics where polished rice has been a staple diet.

In this country, infants or adults may suffer from inadequate supply of vitamin B in the diet, and the result of such deprivation is general weakness, loss of appetite, impairment of digestion and assimilation due to weakening or wasting of the muscles and glands of the digestive tract and a general impoverishment of all the functions of the body in consequence of the faulty nutrition.

Vitamin B is not destroyed by cooking, nor is it destroyed by the greater degree of heat in canning. Canned spinach, for instance, is generally a good carrier of vitamin B, as is cornmeal. A diet restricted to too few items, or a diet consisting mainly of manufactured foods such as white flour, starch, sugar, glucose, corn meal, polished rice, and the like, and the omission of meat and animal or vegetable fat, is likely to be deficient in vitamin B.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Children Should Miss No Feeds.
Do you think it is harmful for a normal school child not to eat a lunch immediately after school? (E.S.)

Answer—Yes, a child should have a regular and fairly substantial lunch at noon, whether he is to have another at 4 o'clock or not.

Chicken Fox.
Would a chicken be subject to chicken pox if I took them on a visit to a home where they had chicken pox two weeks ago? (M. E. C.)

Answer—The incubation period (time elapsing from date of infection to date of onset of illness) is from two to three weeks, so you might arrive with the children just as the next member of the household is coming down with the disease, and that would give your children an excellent chance to catch it. Occasionally chicken pox leaves disfiguring scars, and sometimes grave complications occur, such as pneumonia, septicemia, or nephritis. (Copyright, 1927, for The Constitution.)

Milton C. Work's Pointer On How To Play Bridge

(Milton C. Work, the international bridge authority, will answer your auction bridge questions. A stamped self-addressed envelope must accompany each request for replies.)

The pointer for today is: With but one winning card of the suit originally led at No Trump, Declarer usually should hold that card until the third round if possible.

The doctrine of the hold-up at No Trump is one of the most rudimentary and yet important of the many that the Declarer must understand in order to manage the twenty-six cards he is called upon to play.

The adversary who has the lead will open his longest suit in the hope of establishing it and winning enough tricks to save game; the object of Declarer's hold-up is to block the suit after it is established and kill what would otherwise be one or more adverse winners.

The opportunity to do this blocking arises when the partner of the original leader has no more of the suit, and the original leader can be kept from winning a trick and getting in the lead to cash his winners.

Declarer often can bring about this condition by holding up his winning card of the adverse suit until the third round of it.

Of course the hold-up should be made only when it does not endanger the winning of that one trick in the adverse suit. With Ace-x either in Dummy or in Declarer's hand, he is sure of winning either of the first three tricks; with King-x in Closed Hand when the Ace is played by the Third Hand and the suit returned, Declarer may be sure of either the second or third trick at his option. But when the holding is King-x, Dummy having no support in the suit, and the Third Hand does not play the Ace, the first trick obviously has to be taken with the King, or the King surely would be lost; so the advice in today's pointer applies generally to the Ace-x holdings. The following No Trump hand will illustrate:

North
S: 9-4-2
H: K-7-3
D: J-9-6-3-2
C: 10-9

West
S: Q-10-8-6

C: Q-7-3

South
S: A-K-3
H: A-9-4
D: K-Q-10-5
C: A-8-4

West would lead the Five of Clubs and East would play the Queen. It will be noticed that should Declarer fail to plan and should he take the first or second Club trick, East—when he won with the Ace of Diamonds—would be able to return his partner's suit, which would save game; but if the Declarer holds up his Ace of Clubs until the third round, East would not have a Club to lead, and Declarer would make game.

How should Declarer plan the following No Trump hand after looking at his Dummy?

He said the association has played a big part in the development of this city, pointing out that since the establishment of the association, Atlanta has grown from a population of 100,000 to 200,000.

Mr. Kitchings spoke of the opportunity before the association to conduct the world on the advantages of Atlanta as a distributing center. The association's work during the past year was reviewed by Mr. Kitchings.

He is survived by his wife, two sons, four daughters, two sisters and three brothers.

Funeral services for H. S. Mr. Workman, according to information given to hospital attendants, dropped a cigarette, setting fire to a bed on which he was lying and because of his paralyzed condition was unable to extinguish the flames, or get off the bed before he was severely burned.

He is survived by his wife, two sons, four daughters, two sisters and three brothers.

One typographical error however, caused a stormy tempest, which did not blow over for several days and which turned the editor into a temporary demon to be shunned religiously by each and every one about the place.

This gem slipped in, to the intense amusement of the opposition press, at a time when President Wilson was visiting Italy, shortly after the armistice.

Mussolini had written a flamboyant banner for the front page that morning, followed by an article, welcoming the American chief executive, "Welcome to President Wilson in the city of the traditional ties of democracy," read the first line, which was to

During working hours he was the typesetter's nightmare. He would storm and fume and rage, and he would turn the table and threaten to fire the whole staff. Once the paper was put to bed, though, he quieted down and became once again a courteous and genial of mortals, a friend ready to sip a glass at the corner albarco (the Italian equivalent for our corner drug store) with the humblest printer's devil.

MUSSOLINI: Dynamo of Italy. An Intimate Story

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN European Staff Writer of The Atlanta Constitution and The Evening World

As Tireless as Editor as He Is as Premier; At Work He Was Nightmare of the Printers But Friend in His Leisure.

Mr. Van Paassen has written a series of eighteen articles on Mussolini, the most talked of man in the world. The seventh article in the series follows:

VII.—AS A JOURNALIST.

Rome, January 11.—Newspaper offices seem to be the same world over, that is to say they are at once the most chaotic, the most efficient, the most exciting and as often the dull places imaginable, where in the last instance people look at each other and groan. Mussolini's editorial sanctum, when he was directing Popolo d'Italia at Milan, was no exception to the rule. His desk, world on the actual printing of the paper, Mussolini was not satisfied with the method and took over the mechanical direction of the institution.

The first day after he had taken charge the paper came out on time.

Instead of a capital "T" in "ties of democracy," there appeared an "L," so that the welcome read: "In the name of the traditional lies of democracy."

Margherita Sarfatti, his biographer, who was at that time assistant editor of Popolo d'Italia, told us that the magnetic influence of Mussolini in every department of the newspaper organization. Not the smallest detail of the running of the business escaped the boss' attention. A quarrel in the composing room, a difficulty in the subscription department, sickness of a staff member's relative, the duke interested himself in everything.

Even at that time the immense capacity for work was making itself visible. A capacity which has caused Mussolini personally to take the portfolio of war, of foreign affairs, of marine, of internal affairs, besides being chairman of several parliamentary commissions in the present government.

A subordinate, however, had charge for a long time of the actual printing of the paper, Mussolini was not satisfied with the method and took over the mechanical direction of the institution.

Why WOMAN'S WORK IS NEVER DONE!

PLEASE REMEMBER:

This campaign is in no way directed against legitimate local business houses and local branch stores of national concerns, which, because of the nature of their merchandise, find it convenient or necessary to demonstrate from door to door. Such reliable stores are entitled to your patronage. It is with the fly-by-night irresponsible peddler for out-of-town concerns that this series of articles has to deal.

*Men work from sun to sun,
Women's work is never done.
—Old Adage*

If you want to know why woman's work is never done, just ask the average housewife of your acquaintance to what extent the peddler or "Bell Ringer" interferes with her daily household tasks. You'll be surprised at the reply.

In a recent survey made among women to determine their attitude on the subject of house-to-house canvassers, a vast majority of more than 1,000 women interviewed stressed the annoyance and interruption caused by the endless stream of itinerant salesmen who call at their doors.

They have just gotten the baby to sleep, or they are "up to their elbows" in cookery when the doorbell rings. The gentleman on the other side of the portal wants to interest them in some article of household use or wearing apparel, or what not. Usually the busy housewife is no more interested in what is offered for sale than she is in the middle name of the Man in the Moon. But her caller is insistent, it takes time to get rid of him, and in the meantime Baby awakes crying, or the cake in the oven burns.

If this happens once a week or even once a day the housewife's patience perhaps would not be frayed to a ragged edge. But these annoying interruptions occur with such endless frequency that many a woman is driven to the verge of desperation.

In justice to canvassers who call from house to house, it may be said that many of them are courteous, gentlemanly. Some of them sell honest merchandise. Most all of them are capable salesmen. But, that has nothing to do with the case in point. No matter how polite, how suave or well bred, or apparently considerate your peddler may be HE TAKES UP JUST AS MUCH TIME as though he were a tramp—probably more.

This is the most potent force in turning the housewife against the "Bell Ringer." She knows her home-town stores are filled to overflowing with every conceivable variety of merchandise she or her family can possibly require. She knows this merchandise is attractively displayed for her selection. She knows it is priced right. She knows she will receive courteous treatment and excellent service from her local merchants. Then why, she argues, should she waste valuable time, why should she be subject to endless annoyance and constant interruption by an army of peddlers seeking to sell her something she doesn't want, or something that could easily be duplicated in her local stores for less money?

Most all women are inherently sympathetic and nobody realizes this more than your "Bell Ringer." Very often the peddler works upon that sympathy to further his own wily ends. He has been ill, or his family is sick, or he is trying to finance a college education. One good woman whose patience has been exhausted by "Bell Ringers" claims she has helped enough "sick families" and financed enough "educations" to fill half the hospitals and colleges in the country.

Another housewife declares she has stored away in the attic enough "Bell Ringer" merchandise to fill a small store. She bought it because she just hated to say "No" to the peddlers. But, women rapidly are being "cured" of their propensity to shower the peddler with sympathy. They have found that in most cases they are themselves the proper object for sympathy when they get to the end of a day of endless interruptions from the canvassing fraternity.

Leaving the element of annoyance out of the question, it is, of course, economically unsound to patronize out-of-town house peddlers rather than your home-town stores. It is dangerous to the community, to yourself and your family, because you send money out of town that would otherwise be circulated here, to the good of all.

If you are one of the women whose work is never done, resolve now to defend yourself by saying "No" and closing the door when the "Bell Ringer" calls. You'll have more time, more peace of mind and more money if you give the peddler short shrift.

COMMITTEE HEARS PLEAS FOR FUNDS

Another deluge of requests for enlarged appropriations Tuesday met the finance committee of city council. These requests totaled many thousands of dollars and, while some of them were rejected outright by the committee, others were added to the tentative sheet and will be considered when the committee begins its work of pruning expenditures to balance contemplated revenue for the year.

Among important projects and expenditures for which funds were asked Tuesday were grading of Whiteford avenue from Fair to McPherson avenue; widening and paving of Techwood drive from North avenue to Cain street; $5,000 for remodeling of the negro nurses' home at Grady hospital; $1,100 for a dietitian and $900 for a housekeeper at the same institution. Dr. Harvey W. Cox, president of Emory university; Dr. J. L. Campbell and others appeared in support of the Grady requests.

Abe Greenfield submitted a report of his work in connection with the acquisition of a right of way of the city to extend Broad street and stated that property from Whitehall to Garnett street could be obtained for about $70,000. His report was filed.

Ask for Sidewalks.
A committee of citizens also appeared seeking sidewalks on an improvement project begun several months ago, but which has not been completed on West Peachtree street. The improvement contemplates remodeling of certain buildings, which now take up sidewalk areas, to provide safety for pedestrians.

Charles Kaufman, assistant chief of construction, acting for William A. Hansell, chief, began a list of needs of this department but did not complete his list. He will take the floor at another session at 10 o'clock this morning.

A $25,000 fund for the city's share of widening of Fair street was asked by M. H. Abbott and a delegation from the Third Ward Boosters club and $35,000 for a nine-hole golf course at Candler park. A. L. Belle Isle submitted a plan to hire city employees automobiles for transportation, which he said would save $30,000 annually.

Other department heads also were heard from during the morning session. An appropriation to erect a library building on the lot in West End, purchased several years ago by the city, was asked Monday by a committee of the West End Woman's club in appearing before the finance committee of council. The building lot is on Gordon street by Howell park. The present West End library is maintained in the Wren's Nest, being loaned by the Uncle Remus Memorial association.

U. S. Jury To Meet.

SLIGH TO RETURN TO FACE CHARGE

Sacramento, Cal., January 11.—(P)—Governor Richardson late today granted the request of Georgia authorities for the extradition of Harry K. Sligh, wanted at Fitzgerald, Ga., on a charge of arson in connection with the burning of his home.

Sligh, who was arrested recently at Los Angeles, and admitted his identity, disappeared last September after supposedly human bones had been found in the ruins of his home. Reports recently circulated were to the effect that the charred body was that of a sheep or a goat.

Sligh, according to Los Angeles authorities, said he had been suffering from amnesia and knew nothing of the fire. Heavy life insurance policies which he carried were not paid to Mrs. Sligh pending an investigation by insurance companies. It is expected that the Georgia officer sent here to identify Sligh will leave at once with the prisoner.

AIMEE STARTS LECTURE TOUR

Los Angeles, January 11.—(P)—Aimee Semple McPherson, Angelus temple pastor, left here today for Denver, Colo., on the first leg of a nationwide lecture tour during which she will speak in virtually every section of the country.

Apparently in happy mood over dismissal yesterday of the criminal conspiracy charges which have been pending against her for several months, the evangelist boarded a train while 500 of her followers sang hymns. Mrs. McPherson appeared on the rear platform and led the chorus as the train moved out of the station.

The evangelist will speak at the Denver municipal auditorium Sunday night on the "Four Square Gospel." The following night she will address another audience there on "The March of Christianity."

While she had not completed a definite itinerary, Mrs. McPherson said she would travel across the country to New York and Boston, speaking at all the larger cities and many of the smaller ones en route.

RAGSDALE TO SPEAK AT SAFETY COUNCIL

Mayor I. N. Ragsdale Tuesday stated that he would appear before the Atlanta safety council at its regular weekly luncheon at noon today in the Ansley hotel and outline further plans for police activity looking to proper observance of traffic regulations.

Mayor Ragsdale said he had been in conference during the day with Chief of Police James L. Beavers and that additional officers were being stationed at street intersections as fast as the department could make the necessary personnel changes.

"Both the city hall and the police are determined that the regulations will be enforced," the mayor said. We are making some progress and feel sure that within another week or ten days a considerable improvement will be noticeable."

He told officers of the Atlanta safety council that he had reiterated his instructions to the police chief to make arrests regardless of the race or standing of the violator. He thanked the council for help already given by that body in remedying traffic evils.

HEAVY FINES IMPOSED BY JUDGE V. B. MOORE

Fines aggregating $1,100 were assessed by Judge Virgil B. Moore in the second criminal division of Fulton superior court Tuesday in three misdemeanor cases.

R. A. Minor pleaded guilty to issuing two bad checks, one for $28.50 to E. A. Morgan, of 10 East Hunter street, and a second for $15 to J. F. Creel, of the Arcade building. He was fined $500 or given the alternative of serving 12 months on the chain-gang in the first case, and in the second drew a fine of $250 or six months on the chain-gang.

Sam Williams, negro, charged with assault with intent to murder, was found guilty of stabbing J. M. Evans, and was fined $350 or sentenced to serve 12 months on the chain-gang.

Charles Wilkies, negro, charged with assault with intent to murder, was found guilty of shooting at Charles Benton, and the jury recommended that he be punished as for a misdemeanor. Judge Moore imposed a fine of $300 and gave him the alternative of paying the fine or serving 12 months on the chain-gang.

America has always expected great things from its greatest industry. But the announcement of the Most Beautiful Chevrolet has been the automotive sensation of all time!

Here is a car which in beauty, luxury, quality and modern design challenges the costliest creations of the day.

Here, in a price class where average standards have been the rule, is now offered a car so far beyond all expectation that comparisons cease to exist.

Seven superb models styled as low priced cars were never styled before and offering such marks of fine car distinction as: full crown one-piece fenders, bullet type lamps and "fish tail" rear deck modeling! New and supremely beautiful bodies by Fisher! And, above all, infinitely finer quality—the result of a host of additional improvements such as AC oil filter, AC air cleaner, coincidental steering and ignition lock, larger 17" steering wheel, gasoline gauge and many, many others!

All this is combined to a supreme degree in the long famous leader of the Chevrolet line—the Coach. It would be a brilliant achievement for any manufacturer merely to design such a splendid car to sell at any reasonably low price. But to sell it at the amazing price of $595 is a feat of history making proportions. This one price reduction alone would suffice to center worldwide attention on Chevrolet. But due to economies of tremendous production plus the vast resources of General Motors, Chevrolet also announces striking price reductions on other models.

For years Chevrolet has led the world in providing Quality at Low Cost. But now with a new and more beautiful car—with a car infinitely finer in quality and greatly lower in price, Chevrolet stands supreme and unchallenged in dollar-for-dollar value!

No matter in what price class you intend to buy or whether you plan to spend more or less than the price of a Chevrolet, come in today and see the most beautiful low priced Coach ever designed. Admire its marvelous style and grace! Mark its many new fine-car features! Learn for yourself by personal inspection why, at its new low price, it is the greatest sensation of America's greatest industry!

Miss Ann Stringfellow Weds Mr. Arkwright at Home Ceremony

Characterized by brilliance and elegance in every detail was the marriage of Miss Ann Stringfellow and Preston Stanley Arkwright, Jr., which was solemnized with impressive dignity Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Pegram Stringfellow, on West Fourteenth street. Father Howe performed the ceremony which united two of the most distinguished and aristocratic families in the south, witnessed by relatives and a few close friends before an improvised altar in the living room. Stately palms and ferns formed the background for the pedestal baskets holding Easter lilies, which alternated with white cathedral candlesticks holding white tapers. The stairway was veiled in smilax and garlands of smilax outlined the doors and windows, and an orchestra played Lohengrin's wedding march as the bride party descended the steps.

Bridal Party. Mrs. T. Gilmore Greene, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and Miss Margaret MacIntyre acted as maid of honor.

The bridesmaids included Miss Isabelle McPheeters, of Cleveland, Ohio; Miss Lewis Brown, of Berlin, N. H.; Miss Harriet Shelden, Miss Callie Orme and Mrs. John Knox. The groomsmen were Edward King Van Winkle, John King Ottley, Jr., Dan Conklin and Ralph Williams.

The attractive group of attendants wore gowns of pastel blue satin, fashioned with tight bodices, and the full skirts were outlined with a ruffle of blue tulle. They carried bouquets combining pastel shades of snapdragons, roses and sweet peas, with the shades of pink predominating.

Little Miss Julia Colquitt, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Walter Colquitt, and Stuart Stringfellow Montague, son of Mr. and Mrs. Latine Montague, were the ribbon-bearers. Miss Colquitt's frock was fashioned of delicate pink chiffon trimmed with hand puffings and real lace. She wore a shoulder bouquet of valley lilies and pink rosebuds. Master Montague's smart suit was fashioned of black velvet.

Little Miss Dorothy Arkwright Giddings, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Glenville Giddings, acted as flower girl. She wore a frock of pink chiffon trimmed with pastel-shaded ribbons and carried an old-fashioned bouquet of flowers in the Dresden shades. Master Glenville Arkwright Giddings wore a ring-leader and he wore a suit of white satin.

Beautiful Bride. The bride descended the stairway with her father, Stuart Stringfellow, by whom she was given in marriage. Her bridal loveliness was accentuated by wedding gown of duchess satin combined with rose point lace, which is an heirloom in the paternal family of the bride. The décolleté bodice was worn off the shoulders, and finished by a deep bertha of rose point lace which also outlined the bottom of the full skirt, and was gracefully cascaded down the front, ornamented at either side by clusters of orange blossoms. The court train of delicate satin was embroidered in pearls and fastened to her shoulders with pearl ornaments. A becoming cap of rose point lace held the tulle veil to her golden hair, and adorning either side of the cap were clusters of orange blossoms. She carried an exquisite bouquet composed entirely of valley lilies, white satin ribbon, and cascaded with valley lilies. Around her throat she wore an old-fashioned necklace of filigree gold and pearls which had been worn by her paternal grandmother of the groom.

Handsome Gowns. Mrs. Stringfellow, mother of the bride, was gowned in sea-foam green satin the bodice embroidered in rhinestones, and a shoulder bouquet of orchids completed the ensemble.

Mrs. Arkwright, the groom's mother, wore a handsome gown of white georgette crepe trimmed with silver sequin. Her shoulder bouquet was of orchids and valley lilies. Mrs. Glenville Giddings, the groom's sister, was gowned in flesh-colored crepe embroidered in pearls and crystals. She wore a shoulder bouquet of orchids and valley lilies.

Mrs. Orton Brown, of Berlin, N. H., wore a beautiful costume of yellow crepe with gold trimmings.

Mrs. Walter Colquitt's gown was fashioned of shell-pink crepe elaborately embroidered in crystals.

Mrs. Lollie Markham Pickett wore a French model of flesh-colored satin trimmed with silver lace.

Mrs. Lollie Markham Pickett was a French model of flesh-colored satin trimmed with silver lace.

Reception at Pinebloom. Following the custom for several generations in the Colquitt family, of which Mrs. Arkwright is a member, Mr. and Mrs. Preston Arkwright were hosts at "Pinebloom," their beautiful home in Druid Hills, the homestead of the family, at the wedding reception following the wedding ceremony.

Among the members of the family connection whose wedding receptions were given at "Pinebloom" named for the ancestral home in Dougherty county, are Mr. and Mrs. Colquitt Howard, Mrs. Howard having formerly been Miss Sarah Eubanks; Judge and Mrs. Walter Colquitt and the marriage of Miss Dorothy Arkwright to Dr. Glenville Giddings.

The spacious rooms of the handsome home were elaborately decorated with an abundance of palms, smilax, ferns and gorgeous blooms. In the front entrance hall were two large baskets filled with yellow snapdragons. The large living room where the guests were received was a bower of loveliness with its decorations of Easter lilies and yellow roses. Punch was served in the sun parlor, which was decorated with cut flowers in the pastel shades. Coffee was served in the library where a profusion of pink and white flowers in the shades of mullery draperies.

Bride's Table. Exquisite decorations featured the bride's table, which was covered with a cloth of Point de Venise covering shell pink.

A floral mound of delicate lavender sweet peas and pink roses and sweet peas formed the central decoration. Rising from the center of the mound was a slender silver vase filled with cut flowers in the pastel shades. Six semi-circles of lovely floral mounds, formed of these same beautiful flowers, adorned the table at intervals, while handsome silver candlesticks holding pink burning tapers were placed between the floral circles. The bridesmaids' table was marked by miniature bridesmaids wearing tulle dresses in the pastel shades and carrying bouquets of flowers in the Dresden shades. The groomsmen's table was marked by miniature groomsmen wearing boutonniers of valley lilies. The bride's place was designated by a miniature bride in a white gown, holding a bouquet of flowers. The bride's train extending across the table. The buffets and serving tables in the dining room were graced with large silver baskets and vases filled with Easter lilies and Columbia roses. Seated at the table were Mrs. T. Gilmore Greene, Miss Margaret MacIntyre, Miss Isabelle McPheeters, of Cleveland, Ohio; Miss Lewis Brown, of Berlin, N. H.; Miss Harriet Shelden, Miss Callie Orme, Mrs. John Knox, Miss Ida Sadler, Miss Ellen Newell, Miss Rebecca Aschcraft, Miss Louise Nelson, Gordon Brown, of New Hampshire; Edward King Van Winkle, John King Ottley, Dan Conklin, John Knox, Emerson Gardner, Nisbet Mayre and Jack Sharp.

Wedding Trip. During the evening Mr. Arkwright and his bride left for a wedding trip east. The bride's traveling costume was a two-piece model of navy blue crepe Roma with belt, collar and cuffs of sand-colored crepe. She wore a smart top coat and hat in a matching tan shade.

On their return from their wedding journey Mr. and Mrs. Arkwright will make their home with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arkwright, Sr., in Druid Hills, one of the most fashionable residential sections of Atlanta.

P.-T. A. Chairman Urges Skating Ordinance Enforcement

Appropos of an editorial appearing in The Atlanta Constitution Thursday, January 6, against skating on Atlanta streets, Mrs. Raymond H. Wolfe, safety education chairman for the Atlanta P.-T. A. council, urges all parents to recall the resolution adopted by the P.-T. A. council last spring. The resolution expressed approval of the city ordinance prohibiting the "use of roller skates for the purpose of skating upon any of the streets, that is the roadways, of this city."

"Since the adoption of that resolution," says Mrs. Wolfe, "several accidents and one death has occurred in Atlanta due to children skating on the streets and in the path of automobiles. Daily observation," states Mrs. Wolfe, "shows children not only skating on streets and even traffic boulevards, but boys are often seen holding onto automobiles or vehicles driven at a rapid speed, the driver wholly unconscious of the fact. This is true with boys on bicycles as well as skates."

The training of the adult for the obedience of the law must begin with the child. The training must begin at home. For this reason, states Mrs. Wolfe, all parents and members of the Parent-Teacher associations are earnestly requested and urged to aid in accident prevention by instructing children accordingly. Understanding and conscious observance of an ordinance in childhood should go far toward cultivating a desire for good citizenship in the adult."

CONSTIPATION AND THE ILLS THAT IT CAUSES

"We have used Black-Draught in our family for ten years," says Mrs. Sallie James, Vanceburg, Ky. "It is a splendid medicine to use for constipation and the ills that go with this trouble."

"Every member of my family takes Black-Draught, and we are rarely without it on the medicine shelf. I have never found that it was followed by bad after-effects, such as accompany some other remedies, and because of that we have come to have great faith in it."

"Before we started using Black-Draught, some member of the family was constantly complaining of sick headache, or a dull, lifeless feeling, which accompanies constipation. Now we never have anything like that, for a pinch of Black-Draught gets rid of the trouble. I suffered with constipation for years before I discovered that it could easily be avoided. Since I began using Black-Draught in my home I have recommended it to many of my friends, and I have never heard one of them say anything but good for it."

Thousands of men and women speak highly of Theodor's Black-Draught, because they have found it of great help in relieving and warding off constipation, indigestion, biliousness and other common ailments.

Black-Draught is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, of highest quality, carefully combined, and packaged by automatic machinery.

MEN WHO MADE THE WORLD

THE AMERICANS NOW SEEMED DESTINED TO CERTAIN CAPTURE. THE NUMBER AND EQUIPMENT OF THE BRITISH MADE IT CERTAIN THAT THEY COULD CARRY THE HEIGHTS. ESCAPE BY WATER SEEMED IMPOSSIBLE, AS THE BRITISH FLEET COMMANDERED EVERYTHING. NINE THOUSAND AMERICAN SOLDIERS WERE ABOUT TO FALL PRISONERS TO THE BRITISH. THEIR LOSS WOULD BE A STAGGERING, ALMOST IRRETRIEVABLE BLOW TO AMERICAN HOPES. ON THE NIGHT OF AUGUST 28th, THIS GLOOMY SITUATION FACED THE AMERICANS. AND THEN HAPPENED ONE OF THOSE PROVIDENTIAL EVENTS UPON WHICH HISTORY TURNS. RAIN FELL DISMALLY. A HEAVY FOG DEVELOPED, AND THE EMERGENCY PLAN WHICH WASHINGTON HAD LONG BEEN MATURING WAS BROUGHT INTO EFFECT. AIDED BY THE DARKNESS AND THE FOG, THE ARMY WITH GUNS AND AMMUNITION WAS EMBARKED AND TRANSPORTED TO NEW YORK WITH THE LOSS OF SCARCELY A MUSKET. THIS EXTRAORDINARY RETREAT WAS ONE OF THE OUTSTANDING ACHIEVEMENTS OF THE WAR. MILITARY EXPERTS HAVE SAID THAT IN ITS PLAN, EXECUTION AND SUCCESS, IT IS ONE OF THE MOST REMARKABLE MILITARY EVENTS IN HISTORY. REFLECTING THE HIGHEST CREDIT ON TALENT AND SKILL OF THE COMMANDER.

George Washington

By DR. ELLIOTT SHORING, NOTED HISTORIAN

THE SURPRISE AND MORTIFICATION OF THE BRITISH IN FINDING THAT THE AMERICANS HAD ESCAPED FROM THE DECISIVE BLOW KNEW NO BOUNDS. BUT THEY WERE NOW IN FULL POSSESSION OF LONG ISLAND AND NEW YORK LAY IN THEIR HANDS.

WASHINGTON AT ONCE SENT TO ORANGETOWN, N. J., THE SICK AND WOUNDED. HIS TROOPS WERE GREATLY DISHEARTENED. THEY KNEW THAT NOTHING BUT RETREAT LAY BEFORE THEM. THIS LED TO AN ENLARGED NUMBER OF DESERTIONS, FOR WHICH WASHINGTON MADE HUMANE ALLOWANCES. WITH SIMILAR UNDERSTANDING, GENERAL GREENE WROTE: "MEN COMING FROM HOMES AND DOMESTIC LIFE ARE NOT SUFFICIENTLY FORTIFIED TO STAND THE SHOCKING SCENES OF WAR."

Wider Luckie Committee Asks Fund To Relay Curbs

Armed with deeds to frontage required to make Luckie street from Bartow street to North avenue a 70-foot traffic boulevard and augmented by an able presentation of advantages of early completion of the project, a committee representing more than 100 property owners along the route Tuesday appeared before the finance committee of city council urging appropriation of $28,000 to begin work at once.

The money the committee sought Tuesday would be used to set curbing back and to begin grading, it was pointed out.

Madison Bell, spokesman, delivered a masterly address favoring the project and pointed to the fact that the sixth ward, in which the proposed improvement would be made, pays taxes on over $100,000,000 worth of property. This, he contended, is between 35 and 40 per cent of the total valuation of all city property. The street traverses one of the most thickly populated and richest districts of the entire county, and has been neglected long enough, he declared.

When the development is completed it will provide a thoroughfare from the heart of Atlanta into Hemphill avenue and thence to the northern district of the county where the proposed Peachtree Creek Memorial park will be established.

The appeal was received sympathetically by the finance body, but definite action was deferred pending completion of the tentative finance sheet, when the committee will take it under further advisement.

It is estimated by engineers that the entire project will cost approximately $240,000 and the city and county are expected to join hands in its execution. The street must be graded to make it an acceptable route for vehicular traffic, but it is the only feasible route to large county developments in that section of Fulton county, Raleigh Drennon, public chairman of the Luckie Street

NEW CITY CREMATORY IS SOUGHT BY WOMEN

A delegation of prominent Atlanta women, members of the civic committee of the Atlanta Woman's club, appeared before the finance committee of city council Tuesday morning with a request for appropriation of $130,000 for establishment of a new city crematory.

In addition to this movement, which is a part of the program for "civic week," sponsored by the Atlanta Woman's club, the delegation asked for appropriations to buy eight modern trucks to be used by the sanitary department and for eight small runabouts for the use of city sanitary inspectors.

With the present equipment, the women declared, the department has not been able to function as it should. The civic committee of the woman's club represents 108 civic groups throughout the city and is working to "clean up" Atlanta. Approximately 50,000 copies of Atlanta's sanitary laws are being sent out and are to be placed in the hands of each housewife in the city, to be used for educational purposes.

Chief of Police James L. Beavers has signified his cooperation with the committee and chief of the sanitary department, John J. Jentzen, and asserts that after the pamphlets have reached Atlantans and the laws are thoroughly broadcast he will try to see that they are carried out to the letter.

"Civic Week" was officially ushered in at a meeting Monday afternoon at the woman's club with an address by Mrs. R. K. Rambo, who pointed out that the women of Atlanta were tired of waiting and begging for sanitation in Atlanta and were going to do everything in their power to secure the operation of Atlanta's citizens in "Civic Week" to clean up the city.

Mrs. J. R. Little, chairman of the civic committee of the club, is directing the activities of the clean-up drive.

NATIONAL OFFICER ADDRESSES KIWANIS

Radph A. Amerman, of Scranton, Pa., newly-elected international president of Kiwanis, was principal speaker before the Atlanta club Tuesday at noon at the Ansley hotel. He outlined the rapid growth of the organization from its founding in Detroit in 1915, to the present day. The speaker attributed phenomenal growth of the society to abandonment of selfish aims for those of the community at large, and he complimented Atlanta's Kiwanians on the splendid showing they have made along these lines.

Announcement was made by Dr. William H. Houghton, pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist, that all free offerings taken at Billy Sunday's services on the night of Tuesday, January 15, will be contributed to the Atlanta Kiwanis building fund for the Home for the Friendless.

Announcement was also made of the following committees, who are to serve the club for the coming year: Fred Jordan, chairman of the attendance committee; Julian Williams, educational; Arthur Kitchings, entertainment; Fred Coodledge, finance; Robert H. Haslett, good will and grievance; Tom Boyd, historian; and Harry Wallerstein, state guardianship officer of the Veterans' bureau. Mr. Candler is committeeman from the fifth district.

State Commander Emory Bass will preside at the session which will continue throughout the day. Louis Batten post, No. 4 will be host.

Optimism Over 1927 Outlook Features Annual Meetings Of Directors of Local Banks

W. M. Camp Joins Atlanta and Lowry Directors; Few Changes in Lists of Officials.

Optimism over new year prospects was the keynote sounded at stockholders and directors' meetings of Atlanta bank Monday, when a resume of 1926 met the best expectations of officials in charge.

Robert F. Maddox, chairman of the board of the Atlanta Lowry National bank, in discussing business of 1926 as reported at the annual meeting Monday, stated that the past year was "most satisfactory" for the Atlanta and Lowry National bank and the Trust Company of Georgia. With the earnings of the two institutions considerably more than the previous year, $800,000 was paid out in dividends and a large amount added to undivided profits.

"The increase for the year of $1,319,000 in savings department deposits, making total deposits of the bank about $50,000,000, is of particular interest when the recent discussion in regard to buying on the installment plan, which has undoubtedly stimulated buying of many varieties, is considered," said Mr. Maddox. "It shows that despite other influences there has been a great increase in savings deposits, which is true throughout the country, the national increase being reported as $1,500,000,000."

"We feel that the general outlook for business in Atlanta is very good. Labor is well employed and the city is steadily growing. The advertising campaign of Atlanta has attracted a large number of new enterprises and the million dollars recently subscribed to keep before the people of the United States the great opportunities Atlanta offers will continue to promote the growth of this city and section."

Recent consolidation of the great hydro-electric companies of Georgia and Alabama assures continuity of good service, regardless of droughts and other disturbances, and will continue to promote the industrial growth of the southeast."

William M. Camp, superintendent of the Pullman company for the southeast, was elected to the board of directors of the Atlanta and Lowry National bank, as the only change in the board for the ensuing year at the stockholders' meeting, while at the directors' meeting the same officers were reelected for the year with the addition of A. H. Stevens, who was elected assistant cashier, and the resignation of E. W. Rampeck, as cashier, which was accepted, with the election of A. M. Bergstrom, vice president and cashier.

According to the reports of the meeting the company closed the second year in business in an entirely satisfactory manner, declaring the usual semi-annual dividend at the rate of eight per cent, which is the fifth successive dividend paid on the preferred stock.

Besides the newly-named directors, the board consists of Joseph A. McCord, chairman; H. C. Williams, president; Lee Hagan, vice president; Peter F. Clarke, treasurer; Joseph A. ## HARRIS TO ATTEND TECH BOARD MEET DESPITE WEATHER

Former Governor Nat E. Harris, chairman of the Georgia Tech board of trustees, arrived in Atlanta Tuesday from Orange City, Fla., to attend the annual meeting of the trustees this morning.

Mr. Harris left Florida to brave Atlanta's coldest weather of the winter in order not to spoil a proud record of having attended every annual meeting of the board since his appointment in 1886. The prominent Georgian, who was chiefly instrumental in founding Tech in 1885, showed every evidence of being hale and hearty in the eighty-first year of his career, when he called to visit old acquaintances at The Constitution Tuesday.

The former governor will return to his Florida residence about Saturday to escape the winter weather. In discussing the state of affairs in Florida, Harris declared that "while effects of the storm catastrophe are still evident, Florida is fast improving, thanks to the tourists, who from all appearances have not been permanently scared away."

Returning to the subject which occupies the warmest spot in his heart, the former governor expressed his elation over the progress being made by Georgia Tech and its graduates. "Everywhere I go," he said, "I meet Georgia Tech men in the higher walks of life." He anticipated that the school this year would be given an adequate appropriation by the legislature, which has shown an appreciation for the school's value to Georgia and the south.

The Ragged Edge

By HENRY C. ROWLAND.

INSTALLMENT XXXIII:
HELPLESSNESS.

Bengal tried to speak, but his dry throat and tongue could not articulate. Carillon heard the raucous mutter, turned quickly and saw Bengal's eyes glowing at her through the muck.

"Not Not Not!" she cried, a protest against the trick her senses might be cruelly playing her. The rifle slipped out of her hands and the stock slid to the sand.

"Yes! Yes! Yes!" Bengal croaked, huskily. "Not this time, sweet-heart."

His voice was stifled. Carillon swung around, stopped and gathered his head in her arms. The passion of joy at finding him alive might have stifled another man in its frenzied demonstrations. Bengal's heavy arms struggled up and round her. A dark enemy might easily have finished both in the next few minutes, could it have known.

They waded silently out into the cool, refreshing water.

"Bungle, I was sure that you were dead."

"So I was, sweet. Bungle is right. Another bonehead, to expose us both the way I did. Boneheads have their uses, though. Mine can't be all bone, or it wouldn't be so sore. What's that?"

Something hard and rough just above the tip of his ear came in contact with his exploring fingers. At first he thought it to be literally bone, but immediately discovered that it was metallic. At the risk of bleeding he scaled it off, then examined it as best he could in the dwindling light.

Check. A bullet splashed off the rock. It flattened and got me on the rebound. I was poked, like a squirrel. Some shock. And you, my cave girl!"

"I'm not hurt. But there are some more holes through your coat." She laughed shrilly. "O, Bungle, I thought that you were dead."

"So I was, nearly. Just before I got keeled over. We will talk about that again, but next time when the show is over. Not between the acts."

"You can scarcely speak. I'll get some water."

His hand closed on her arm. "Not yet. I'll crawl over there when it gets good and dark. Now, what has happened to Gertrude? It looked to be plain sailing."

"Nobody home, I should say. What I can't understand is the persistence of these devils. Why are they so set on finishing us before they leave?"

"They think that since I killed Tony, and Tony was chief, and probably, therefore, treasurer of the mob, that I must have eased him of the loot."

Carillon seemed to be turning this idea in her mind. It must have presented a number of facts for her examination, Bengal thought from her protracted silence. Then she asked in a low, unsteady voice: "And did you, Bungle?"

"Yes. They were in the pockets of that coat you have on."

"What did you do with them?"

"I hid them in a safe place, some distance away."

"Do you think that you could get them, after dark?"

"I might, but as things now stand, only at great risk."

"Could you find the spot?"

"I think so."

"Then get them, Bungle. O, get them, please. It's almost dark."

She began to tremble violently. "Come on. I'll go with you."

Bengal was silent. He would have said that he had already suffered his limit that day, but apparently not.

For her now was Carillon, still vibrant from her ecstasy of love and joy at finding that he still lived, now asking him, imploring him to risk that life again, and at fearful risk, to bring her the gems that had been the cause of all this horror.

That leaden feeling about his heart, now a symptom he recognized as Carillon's work and carried on by her, bore down again on Bengal. This time it had beyond despair the added weight of hopelessness. The girl was right. What use trying to combat a curse like this? Share it, he might, but cure it? Again Carillon was right. As she had said, even death might not do that, if she were to marry first. Another generation would have to pay the price.

It seemed to Bengal that nothing that could happen now really mattered much. Any way it went, this was a losing fight. Carillon might better have died of privation and exposure over there in the bush or have had her throat cut more mercifully than to go on wrecking her own life and the lives of others. As for himself, he would rather that the bullet that stunned him had gone through his head than to live on with no hope of curing her. He had said that he would share the curse, but had not meant it in this way. He would share the consequences of the curse, but he could not share Carillon with it.

He felt her eyes watching him intently, trying to pierce the gathering dark. He moved closer and looked into them. They were very wide open and seemed filled with a pale, greenish lambent light. The light of her singular madness, Bengal thought. That horrid monomania by which she was now suddenly possessed on learning that the wonderful gems were within reach, not safe reach but possibly accessible.

A wave almost of nausea swept over Bengal. Poisons, he reflected, were often their own titlodes, or associated with them. Carillon's, it appeared, was no so far removed.

As it to add to his revulsion of feeling, she laid her hand on his arm. "It's dark enough. Do please get them, Bungle dear. I'll go with you."

"Come on, then," he answered, tonelessly. The sheltering grotto now weighed down upon him, seemed to suffocate him. He felt that he would stifle unless he got into the tree open air. He was not sure that he could find the little cranny where he had hidden the jewels in the dark, but a full moon would soon be rising.

Carillon threw off the serge coat and they waded silently out into the cool, refreshing water. Regardless of hidden enemies, contemptible of sharks, they swam a few strokes to the boundary of their refuge, then made their way partly in the water, partly out, to the smoother scarp. Here Bengal paused.

"Whatever happens," he said in a dull voice, "these accursed jewels must not get back into the hands of that filthy crowd."

"No fear, Bungle."

"Why not?"

"They've gone."

"How do you know?"

"Not long after I fired last I heard their motor. It grew fainter and fainter, finally died away."

"What about the other boat?"

"They towed the cabin-cruiser clear of the rocks and sank her. Or else she was stove or opened up beneath. When I heard the motor running I swam out to look. I didn't care much what happened then, because I thought you were killed."

"I almost wish I had been. Then you saw her sink?"

PAVING DECISION WON BY CITIZENS

The state supreme court Tuesday declared void a city ordinance requiring property owners of Atlanta to pay paving assessments for reinforced concrete work done under the tracks of the Georgia Railway and Power company in a paving project on Moreland avenue. The court ruled that the ordinance was invalid because the assessment for the concrete work beneath the tracks could not legally be imposed on owners of the abutting property.

Under the terms of the decision, the Georgia Railway and Power company will be required to pay $16,000 paving costs for its share of the paving covered by this particular ordinance. The supreme court held that provisions of the ordinance in which it was sought to charge this part of the paving cost against the property owners were opposed to the city charter provisions and also were in conflict with an ordinance passed later.

Final Announcement of Prize Winners in The Atlanta Constitution's Elephant Puzzle Contest

Many Solutions Received in the First Puzzle, Giving the Weight of the Elephant

The correct answer was 6,045. There were over 1,300 who submitted the correct answer.

In paragraph 6 of the elephant adding contest, the following was stated as one of the rules: "In case of ties as many awards will be reserved as there are people tied." Before any awards are awarded for less correct solutions another puzzle will be submitted to those tied. That is, if two or more people should tie on the best solution, the first two or more awards will be reserved for them, and they will be awarded in the order of the standing of their solutions of the second puzzle.

If ties result as many as five tie-breaking puzzles will be used, after which should ties still result each contestant will receive the full value of the prize tied for.

The above is a reproduction of the highest solution submitted by any of the contestants. There were four ties on this solution. The sum total of figures in circles connected is 7,470, number of circles used 319. The line started at the top near the left-hand corner at circle 17. In making the cut the letter "S" failed to show.

THERE WERE ONLY 30 PRIZES OFFERED

Since there were only 30 prizes to be distributed, it was necessary to submit a tie-breaking chart to the over 1,300 contestants who sent in the correct weight of the elephant, and following the rules governing the breaking of ties, all thirty prizes were set aside.

The announcement of the result of the adding contest was made in the Sunday Constitution, December 19th, 1926. In the same announcement there appeared the tie-breaking chart and rules governing same. The names of the contestants and the prizes were published.

Four tie-breaking charts were mailed to each of the contestants sending a correct solution, viz., 6,045, Saturday afternoon, December 18th, 1926.

MANY TIE-BREAKING SOLUTIONS RECEIVED IN THE SECOND PUZZLE

After checking diligently for several days on the many solutions sent by contestants in the second puzzle, it was found that the best solution, reproduction of which is herein shown, had four ties. Each one of those tying had fully qualified with remittance of $19.50.

It was therefore necessary under the rules governing tie-breaking to set aside the four first prizes. There were two methods by which this situation could be met. One was for each of the four tying contestants to agree to the consolidation of the four prizes involved, and each take one-fourth of the sum total, or submit the chart with different conditions and rules, and require each to submit another solution.

The contestants in question were conferred with, and each requested that the sum total be divided equally between the four. The prizes involved were the first prize, $2,000.00, second prize, $1,000.00, third prize, $500.00, fourth prize, $200.00, or a sum total of $3,700.00.

Therefore, according to the agreement of these four tying contestants, each is entitled to $925.00.

FIFTH AND SIXTH PRIZES TIED

The second best solution was submitted by two parties, making, of course, two ties. Under the rules, the fifth and sixth prizes must be set aside for these tying contestants. They requested that the sum total of the two prizes involved be divided, which means that each of the tying contestants on the second best solution is entitled to $75.00.

Further down the line there are other ties indicated, but the prizes involved being of equal amount, it was not necessary to apply the tie-breaking rule.

SOLUTIONS ELIMINATED ACCOUNT OF ERRORS

Quite a number of contestants submitted apparently good solutions, but in checking them it was found they had made a previous error:

By referring to the chart above you will find a line running from 39, having an X by the side of it, to circle 22, where there is another X. In almost the middle of this line you will find circle 11. By taking a straight-edged rule, laying on the center of circle 39 and the center of circle 22, it can readily be seen that this is not a straight line, and that it bends at circle 11.

Some of the contestants did not notice this, although this bend is clearly noticeable to the naked eye.
